THE PROBLEM

Black Muslim families in Edmonton are 16× more likely to live in subsidized housing - and faith-based organizations whose religious principles prohibit interest-based financing have almost no access to conventional real estate capital. The Halal Affordable Housing Investment Fund was built to change that. Canada faces a critical shortage of family-sized affordable housing. Larger, multi-generational, and newcomer families in Muslim and other faith-based communities are often left without suitable, affordable options. Conventional real estate finance relies almost entirely on interest-bearing debt, which excludes Muslim organizations and investors from participating in housing solutions in alignment with their values.

Housing Scarcity

Affordable 2+ bedroom units are chronically undersupplied, leaving extended families overcrowded or priced out of suitable homes.

Finance Exclusion

Shariah principles prohibit interest-based financing, cutting Muslim organizations off from virtually all mainstream capital sources.

Investment Gap

Faith-aligned investors have very few institutional-quality, Shariah-compliant investment options available in Canada.

THE FUND

The Halal Affordable Housing Investment Fund is Canada's first institutional-quality, Shariah-empowered housing investment vehicle. This means no exploitative interest - only equity participation and profit-sharing through familiar structures like joint ventures and proportional returns. It is structured as a GP/LP fund with a General Partner jointly owned by IslamicFamily (60%) and SVX (40%). Investors subscribe as Limited Partners. Capital is deployed into affordable housing projects on an equity basis, with returns tied to real asset performance rather than interest or debt.

AUGUST 15, 2026 — KEY MILESTONE

WHY AUGUST 15, 2026 MATTERS

The fund must secure a $400,000 initial capital commitment and investor interest toward the full raise by August 15, 2026, in order to proceed with the Option to Purchase on the Diamonds at Dunluce property. Missing this date means losing the project. We are actively seeking investors and funders who can commit ahead of this date.
